Teutons in Balkan Drive SEND ARMY TO TURKEY, GERMAN PLAN

Sunday Showers! But the Prophet Says 'Probably'
Looks like a little Sabbath rain. This should bust all chances of summer having a chance for the weather. People are even now hinting that Old Jack Frost may come through. The forecast for Boston vicinity is: "Probably local showers Sunday afternoon or night. Moderate variable winds." The weather man is taking no chances now. He judges with "probably." He remembers that "somewhat cooler" prediction that he gave out at mid-week, but which was broken all day. Temperature today 69 degrees at 1 p. m. Pretty nifty! Just the snappy weather for tying another knot in the tail of the Detroit Tiger.

LONDON, Sept. 18.—Germany is preparing to send an army through the Balkans to the aid of Turkey, now sorely pressed by the Allies at the Dardanelles. Dispatches from Constantinople say that River Pasha, the Turkish War Minister, at a review of troops in honor of Duke Albrecht von Mecklenburg, stated that the Duke's arrival was the "forerunner of a great German army."

The Austrians, with the purpose of opening a way for the proposed Teutonic drive southward, are already pushing at the Serbian frontier. Their initial effort, according to reports from Nish, have met with failure.

Announcement was made at the Serbian War Office today that three attempts to invade Serbia had been repulsed. The enemy three attempted to cross the Save during the night of September 14, but was repulsed each time by the infantry.

War experts here believe that the Germans and Austrians are planning to launch a drive at the Balkans that will compare in power with that which swept the Russians from Galicia and Poland. For weeks large masses of troops have been concentrated near the Serbian frontier, and, if once an opening can be made, it is the evident purpose of the Kaiser to hammer through to Belgrade, which is regarded in Berlin and Vienna as more than friendly with the Central Empire.

Such a drive, if successful, the Teutons believe, would build up the fighting power of Turkey, remove the Balkan menace and hasten an early peace.

BERLIN, Sept. 18.—The Russian front between Vilna and the Niemen River has been pierced at several points by the army of Field Marshal von Hindenburg. It was officially announced today by the German war office. The advanced positions of the Russians at the Dunauburg (Dvinsk) bridge head have been taken.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 18.—Vilna is virtually surrounded by German troops, and it is feared that the fall of the city is imminent. Official announcement was made today by the Russian War Office that the Germans of Field Marshal von Hindenburg's army have fought their way to the Novo Wileisk-Moldetschna railway, east of Vilna. This shows that the German circle has been drawn more than three-quarters around the city. Dvinsk, 62 miles northwestern of Vilna, has been captured by the German forces that crossed the Vilna-Petrograd railway. It is officially admitted that the Germans are advancing toward Pinsk along the Kobrin-Pinsk railway. In anticipation of the Russian offensive continues successfully.

The War Office announces the capture of about 1,000 officers and men in the recent operations. The text of the official statement follows: "The enemy has retained possession of Dvinsk, and has reached the Novo Wileisk-Moldetschna railway."

"South of Dvinsk, the Germans have occupied Radzow and have crossed to the right bank of the Schtschona river. The enemy has advanced along the Kobrin-Pinsk railway. We have captured Dvinsk, capturing 2,000 men and four machine guns."

"Southwest of Wisniewsk, about thirty miles north of Tarnopol, in Russia, we have captured twelve officers, 548 men and three Maxim guns. "South of Brest, on the Stripsa River, we have captured fourteen officers and 1,200 men."

"We have occupied the villages of Janow and Polawa, the enemy fleeing in disorder. Dispatches from the front enhance the importance of the Russian victory near Dvinsk, where the German had in disaster before the assaults of the Russians. Military experts foresee the fall of Vilna, declaring that it was held only for strategic reasons, these reasons being to allow the bulk of the Russian forces that were operating in that sector to withdraw."

GROUND RULES AS GAME IS CALLED

FENWAY PARK, Sept. 18.—Forty minutes before starting time for the third battle between the Red Sox and Tigers today there were more than 25,000 "fans" inside the grounds. The crowds surged through every admission gate, and there was every indication that there would be over 30,000 when the game began.

The grandstand, with the exception of the reserved seats, was filled by 130. About half the bleachers and pavilion seats were occupied at that hour, and people were still streaming into the gate.

Those entering the field from each end of the grandstand, and four mounted police men were on duty back of the ropes.

The Red Sox were out for practice early, and their snappy work drew frequent applause. At 1:15 the crowd began racing across the field to get behind the ropes, making ground rules necessary for today's game. The space in front of the ticket office was packed solid with "fans" still chanting "No buy admission, 'Duffy's Cliff' was black with people five minutes after crowd was admitted back of the ropes.

TWO SPECULATORS ARRESTED

Two silent speculators, too bold in their work, were arrested outside the main gate.

A blasting automobile also added to the excitement. Hubert Jennings got a good hand when he came out and cavorted around second base, as practice with the Tiger's mascot playing short.

The admission to the grandstand was stopped at 2:35. At this time there were about 30,000 fans in the first base pavilion reserved for the Royal Rooters, and about 20,000 persons in the stands. Fully 5,000 persons were back of the ropes, many women and their escorts being included in this number.

The Royal Rooters marched into the park to the music of their own band, and were greeted by the cheers of the multitude. Long lines formed outside the gates.

STEFANSSON ARE DISCOVERED BY STEFANSSON

NOME, Alaska, Sept. 18.—Viktor Stefansson, chief of the Canadian government Arctic exploring and surveying expedition that left Victoria, B. C., in June, 1913, and who was not seen for over a year, has been discovered by the expedition in the Arctic region.

The power schooner Ruby arrived here from Herschel Island with dispatches from Stefansson to the Canadian government in which he omits reference to the Arctic region of mystery between Alaska and the North Pole, where the ship has been.

Stefansson is wintering at Banks Lake, where he has a large power schooner and a small one. He plans to explore the new territory during the winter, and next summer to penetrate farther into the region of mystery between Alaska and the North Pole, where the ship has been.

Discuss Plan of Opening Schools Later in the Fall

The unprecedented heat, causing the closing for the first time in history of the schools in Boston, September 17, for a period longer than half a year, has caused a discussion among the officials of the city of the advisability of opening the schools later in the fall and making up for the lost time by extending the school term to July 1.

This new plan was suggested yesterday by chairman Michael F. Coffey of the Boston School Committee and he believes there is much to be said in favor of it.

GRAND JURY TO PROBE WORK OF SPIES

By International News Service. NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—A high government official is authority for the statement that a Federal Grand Jury will be called to investigate a mass of complaints against a suspected spy charged with having tied up a great number of American war supply plants with fictitious orders to delay their shipment.

One striking example of the way a Gray contract collapsed was furnished by August P. Loring, one of the most influential capitalists of New England. Mr. Loring is president of the Hopkins Allen Arms Company, with which Gray negotiated for an order for 50,000 rifles. Each rifle was to cost $20. The total contract involved $1,000,000. Mr. Loring said:

"After prolonged negotiations we became suspicious. The orders did not materialize. At last we gave up the proposition altogether. Our plan to now buy making rifles for the Belgians."

A syndicate was formed last April by Frank P. White, a Massachusetts manufacturer of rifles, and Nathaniel G. Prince, J. Hunter Gray, a New York arms dealer, and a German, six weeks went by. Then Gray and one of the syndicate went

ARMS EMBARGO GARRISON PLANS $250,000,000 FOR DEFENSE

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN, Special Correspondent of the International News Service. WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—Intimations from British sources that England may demand arbitration of the commercial issues in dispute between the two countries, should the American demand that the freedom of the seas be restored be couched in dramatic language, has increased officials here.

They believe that if such tactics are attempted, they will make the situation worse instead of better. The President is admittedly very anxious to obtain substantial concessions from Britain, to offset the demand of the commercial interests of the United States for an embargo on arms in retaliation for the British interference with the commerce of this country.

It is a policy of delay in London, it will leave the question at issue between the governments open until after Congress can convene, and then into the hands of the advocates of an embargo.

ORDER TO SHOOT ON SIGHT ON THE BORDER

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—"Shoot on sight" and "person who goes into United States territory from the Mexican side" was the order issued today to American troops who are guarding the border, according to Brownsville.

Not an American soldier was wounded in the fight between United States cavalrymen and Carrancista troops at Donna yesterday, in which fifteen Mexicans were killed and three seriously wounded, according to official information from the American military authorities. Donna is on the Rio Grande, fifty miles north of Brownsville.

The violence of the United States patrols there has been increased as a result of fears that the Mexicans may try to make a surprise attack.

DITCH AT MATANZAS. Carrancista soldiers at Matanzas started the firing across the Rio Grande at Brownsville which resulted in the battle with American troops yesterday and then tried to put the blame on the Americans. This was the report today of General Putnam to the War Department. Although the shot were exchanged on each side, there were no casualties.

In his summary of the reports of the incident made to him, General Putnam said an employee of a Spanish ranch fired as he was passing a point between Brownsville and the pumping station. His horse was killed. He reported the incident to the sheriff and Lieutenant and twenty men were sent to investigate. They found a lone Mexican fishing on the Matanzas side of the Rio Grande, who said he heard no firing. Presently he ran into the brush and disappeared with a rifle and several companions and began firing on the American soldiers. Glass and his men returned the fire, when the Mexican fled.

C. S. BATTERY TRAINED. A battery of American field artillery is trained on the Mexican side of Matanzas, the position of which has been reinforced by the arrival of large numbers of Carrancista troops.

The prospects of an encounter were heightened by the fact that four hundred Carrancista have taken a position on the opposite bank and had taken possession of field artillery.

When Brownsville, the garrison, was shelled by a crowd that stormed the Carrancista headquarters and ammunition. They retreated when threatened by a crowd by General Putnam's side and were surrounded when the Mexican battery was trained against the river.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—Mrs. Cecil M. Virginia Davis, twenty-three and very attractive, has filed suit in the Supreme Court here against Robert M. Eastman, a wealthy Chicagoan, for $150,000 for kisses which she alleges he stole from her in the Congress Hotel, Chicago, on May 2, 1914.

She says she was injured and humiliated and claims Eastman stole the cause of her husband's divorcing her at Kansas City. In her declaration she says the kisses were taken against her will.

Min. Davis declares that at the time she met Eastman in May, 1914, she was employed in a photograph studio; that a mutual friend introduced Eastman, "who manifested strong interest in her work, and offered aid and assistance in attaining greater success," she declares.

She further avers that Eastman told her he was a very rich man who lived in Chicago; that he represented himself as a patron of art and philanthropist. She says Eastman proposed that she go to Chicago at his expense, he being his own money.

WILL QUIT CIGARETTES
 NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—(Huntington Post.)—The cigarette habit of the circus as snuff as my contract expires, says a circus manager. "I am not a smoker," he says, "and it is hardly likely that I will do so. I have been a manager of the circus for 15 years, and I have never smoked a cigarette. I am not a smoker, and I am not a smoker."

But back to training. It may seem a little far to devote attention again to the subject of training when it is the subject of the circus, but the training of the circus is a subject that is of great importance to the circus. The training of the circus is a subject that is of great importance to the circus.

MADISON, Ct., Sept. 18.—Lowrey, a senior third team, went in for a quarter on the Yale variety and kept up his good work. He is considered one of the best "fiddlers" in the squad. Key, Curran and Thompson are other candidates for the position.

Bentley, who has been at the pivot position for a week, was switched to the second eleven, giving way to Lowrey. "Pie" Guard also lost his place at left guard to Bentley. Bentley is now on the second eleven. However, Way is rapidly getting in the best of form and is almost sure to be one of Yale's regulars this fall.

Head Coach Frank Hinkley is well

read, guard, Tom Powers, left end, and the line, including the new players, tackle, Al Reagan, half back, Murphy, tackle, and McCormick, center, are all ready to go to work. The team is ready for another stiff orism.

EDDIE MARTINSON, one of the cleverest schoolboy quarterbacks in the North Shore, will enter Colgate.

All Salem is looking to Irving Pinsky to turn out a top notch bunch of pigskin chasers. A squad of twenty men have reported.

At Beverly High there is some doubt whether Nelson, quarterback last Fall, will be allowed to play. He was chosen captain, but did not play. The rule which compels a boy to attend three months before he can take part in athletics, however, would come under the rule has not been determined. As he did not transfer to any other school, he may be granted permission.

The final practice of the week of the Harvard football team was held yesterday afternoon and, although a more spirited aggregation of athletes ever wore the Crimson, every man was greatly relieved when it was announced there would not be any work today.

Regardless of the terrific heat waves, the Crimson warriors are in excellent shape and contrary to the pessimistic opinion of some of the men retained in seclusion at the conclusion of yesterday's drill than they were when they reported for the initial practice Monday afternoon.

After the daily confab in the Lookout Building, the varsity candidates were taken to the gymnasium and worked at the "dummies" for about twenty minutes. This is the first time the Harvard team has been drilled as has gone into "battle" with the unskilled opponent, but the men went Galloway, backs; and the line for the second team, while the line of this eleven was made up of Weatherhead and Lartley, ends; C. Burr and Judnum, tackles; J. S. Middenhour and Parsons, guards; and Taylor at center.

During the first half hour only the simplest plays were tried, and after the men were allowed to walk through the formations. But just before being sent to the quarters loosened up a little and tried some double and forward passes.

...seasons will be in vogue until college opens Thursday.

THE REAL work starts Monday when the variety and second teams will meet at an scrimmage practice. It is hoped for the sake of the candidates that the weather undergoes a decided change.

"POUCH" Nelson ordered all the variety men to wear their uniforms for the first time the morning scheduled for a session with the football team. The order was issued because of the numerous chances of injury figuring that the variety men would be in the line of action. The order was carried out because by tackling the "dummys" the heat brought on by the wearing of uniforms was lessened.

LAKE is an exceptionally fancy and has a large bunch of students. The laughter has chosen for his variety number. The team may not be as well known as the other teams, but they have been loved by Charles Brickley, but ALTHOUGH "Dumpy" Watson says a couple of weeks in the boiler room with the mill at Plattburg is not a hardship, he is not going to work there for his chance to play football. He is unable to stand the flat heat and is unable to stand the cold. He is unable to stand the practice and has been in the boiler room for a couple of weeks. However, his case is not a serious one and he will be back at work Monday.

ALTHOUGH "Buck" Nelson, former English High School player, is not going to play football, it will not be all as surprising if it were. He is a very good player and is much heavier and in better physical condition than previously.

J. A. GILMAN, the renowned tackle of the football team, is going to play as yet. Before leaving "Bilt" Curt Campbell, Gilman gave the football team a lesson in the art of tackling. Gilman has troubled him ever since. "Don't let me see you tackle me," he said. "I will show you how to tackle me." He has been most of his time roaching the tackle

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 13.—R. Leonard Williams, 2d, of Harvard defeated Leonard Beakman of Princeton in the final round for the intercollegiate singles championships on the courts of the Merion Country Club, Haverford. The scores were 6-1, 6-1.

Williams' triumph assures Princeton a clean sweep in the tournament as it starts both teams in the doubles championships today.

Williams and Richard Harte of C. Caner and L. H. Curtis are the white pairs and a victory for Williams and Harte is looked for by most sportsmen.

The double victory gives Harvard five points on the Harrison K. Cup, the other three resulting from Williams' victory in the singles and the success of W. M. Washburn and J. Armstrong in the doubles in round the victory of Williams.

Exeter Has Squad of 35.
EXETER, N.H.—The Exeter squad now numbers thirty-five and is beginning to look proud of its new uniforms. Work begins tomorrow Monday.

The Atlas A. A. management has arranged an unusually spicy line of preliminary events to go with the Tuesday night's fuss between Charley Wadsworth of Chicago and Gilbert Gallant of Chicago.

Mike Crowley of Malden, a lightweight many New England "fans" are predicting forward. All the breath needed in the 132-pound division, will appear in his second professional bout with the "Blond Bomber" Bladen, a sturdy Vronosocket miller.

Another match attracting attention brings forward "Heavy" Brown and Howard McItee. These two "big" weights are easily the "classiest" looking pair developed in this section in recent years.

"Spider" Murphy, another recent graduate of the amateur ranks, and Sammie Smith, a former champion, will have the talent a shock when he defeated "Teddy" Brown in a hard action bout some time ago, will meet in the opening event.

W. won the Atlantic City cup competition, and was runner-up from W. H. Wolstencroft of Philadelphia, 1918, after they tied at 148. Wolstencroft was a professional, but W. was high amateur, Mrs. L. G. Vogel of Detroit. The four women shooters with a total of 429 breaks.

Why We Quarreled-- The Man's Side

No. 5—The Man Who Liked an Occasional Drink Tells His Story.

Virginia Terhune Van de Water

WHEN I was young I was a drinker. I will confess to my wife and I have quarreled about my drinking habit. I am a drinker. On the contrary, I am a fairly temperate. I am not a total abstainer, though Susan's father is. Had she asked me before our marriage if I drank, I would have told her the truth. But she never asked me.

When we had been married for some months she smelled liquor on my breath one evening and made a great fuss over it.

"You have been drinking" she accused.

I acknowledged that I had had one glass of whisky. "There is no harm in that," I affirmed.

"But there is," she declared. "Drink ruins more homes than any other vice in the world."

"It is not a vice," I insisted, "unless one carries it too far. And when I am tired or depressed I feel the need of a stimulant of some kind."

"Then why not take a cup of tea instead?" she argued.

I could not help laughing as I visualized myself taking such a brewer as this. Then, as I saw that my wife was really unhappy, I tried to soothe her.

"Dear Susan," I pleaded, "do be reasonable. I have never been drunk since my ally freshman year in college—and then only once."

"I tell you it is a wicked habit and a terrible one," she retorted, and in her declaration I recognized her father's teaching.

I appreciated that she was absolutely unreasonable on the subject, so I tried, without lying to her, to make her think that I would hereafter let all drink alone.

"I determined to do as I had always done. I certainly had enough self-control not to go too far. Ignorance to blame, and it is a wife's fault who allows a matter to be wise and right for a husband to avoid worrying her."

SEE WATCHES CLOSELY

For a while Susan watched me closely, and she often sniffed the air about me suspiciously as if to make sure that it did not smell of liquor. I was very careful that it should not. I confined my own drink a day to the noon hour when I was out at luncheon. By the time I reached home in the evening there was no odor on my breath.

So I do not consider that this was wicked deceit. Had I objected to Susan taking her cream soda, had I scolded her whenever she did take it, I would surely have expected her to keep silent with regard to her drinking habits to the ends of the earth.

A year passed before the final quarrel occurred. My wife had come up town to spend the day with me. She had been out to storm, and at 4 o'clock Susan telephoned to my office that it was raining. Susan once said:

"The world is full of people who determine to go on just as usual no matter what happens. They may reconcile themselves to that, but the world regards them as either fools or persons of no account."

There are certain thoughtlessnesses with regard to others that become habitual to most of us. They are of no particular importance, though they contribute to make the slightly neurotic. At times, however, these little irritating habits become serious. A thoughtlessness that is ordinarily tolerable becomes intolerable at times.

The modern habit of dwelling in apartment houses is made endurable chiefly because many people are adaptable and free from the thoughtless irritations that are a part of this quality.

How many of us have been wakened up from the start by the sound of a neighbor's door slamming or by the sound of a neighbor's piano playing late at night? How many of us have been made miserable by the heavy tramping of the tenant's feet as he comes in at night? How many of us have been made miserable by the heavy tramping of the tenant's feet as he comes in at night? that if she did not return until morning.

"I Know a GIRL There!"

DENVER

(The Young Chaps' Idea of Geography)

STUTTING across the lunch table from me a college boy asked me if I had thought of how varied the chap of nineteen and twenty was in geography! "Do you know—did you ever think how the map of the United States looks to him? Why, over its yellow and red and green and blue expanse—out of the States fill girls' faces. And by that he meant his town.

"All his little-boy geography has gone the way of the great west things he knew once upon a time—where the peewee built its nest, and how many baby owls there were in the 'hush-wing' tree, and the glorious black and white facts in the history of his country—all to the limbo of the big wisdom! Now, he meets a chap and shakes his hand, and says, 'Oh, you are from Um-hum? O I KNOW A GIRL THERE!' That's geography.

"He knows no more what is the capital of the big yellow Western State where the cactus lies toward the burning blue sky. Until he remembers that he knows a girl there! He never remembered that the big line town with the clean sun-washed streets, or the dirty one that he loved in spite of its gray hue, was in that State—but he knows a girl there!

Each town he knows is a girl's face, lifting into his memory, smiling, or wistful, dusky or blonde, jolly or sober, sun-touched or hot-house pale! He knows a girl there!"

Denver-town. A girl with amber hair, a magnet for the lips; lips as red as the Indian-Paint-Brush flower; the skin that keeps its whiteness save for a tiny dust of childish freckles; the girl with the eyes so often colored with the cheerful hue of the great blue wild of mountains that fill the horizon west of her, the mountains that are sometimes blue and sometimes rain-gray—sometimes lilac and sometimes almost gold; the girl with the swing to her steps and the lift of chin that comes with looking over open country; the girl with a wind and a heart and face alert and sprightly. The girl who marches the land of lovely land; the land of fair coloring and mounting hills and a sky as blue as blue!

Forgive me for putting the girl of my home town first!

A Lesson for the Stage Struck

Ella Wheeler Wilcox Tells of One Theatrical Career and What It Yielded

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

WITH all stage-struck young women come more than a few women who have heard a young actress's conversation a few weeks ago.

She went on the stage at the age of sixteen. She is perhaps twenty-six to twenty-eight now, she married an actor who draws a good salary and never lacks an engagement. She has appeared in excellent companies, and has been given leading roles in good and successful plays.

Yet her face was gray with despondency, and in her eyes there dwelt a look akin to despair as she talked to me of her plans for the future.

"Oh, I have been offered some very good roles," she said, "my manager I shall accept. My husband opened his sight in New York; the play he is in secured a great success and will run there several months. Then it will go on the road. I shall go out with some company later. I fancy I shall appear in the city of New York, New York. But I do not expect to see him again. He is in one of his moods, and he is not at all what we desire in life is a home."

It is not only a very hard life of travel and separation and loneliness. It is not only a very hard life of travel and separation and loneliness. It is not only a very hard life of travel and separation and loneliness. It is not only a very hard life of travel and separation and loneliness.

"The rehearsal and the night and matinee appearances consume the time not given to sleep. Then, the travel and the hotel life are no less a hardship. I am often with my own work in the world. I am often with my own work in the world. I am often with my own work in the world. I am often with my own work in the world."

hated, that the husband, a gifted young man, had absolutely refused to pursue her career. And as there are more than two dependent upon this couple for support, the charming artist, when notified in all parts of the civilized world have given certain calls, but in the flower of her youth and career, stepped out of the ranks of "professionals"—and—became a fashionable boarding house.

THE GREAT YEARS

"I so want a home," she cried. "I am willing to work and endure all sorts of cares and anxieties if I can only have a home life. I do not want to live in this awful tradition of a theatrical career, with no fixed habitation. There are no compensations in this life which repay for the sacrifice we have been making."

"Think of that, my stage-struck husband and mother on New York! All I can hope to do by these means is to do some career—mad young woman to thinking seriously before she enters the most arduous of professions, to which she may devote her best energies and years with no result."

"The state of life is determined by two things—the happiness we have on earth, and the influence we have on others. Unless one or the other is satisfactory, life will be a failure."

Real Happiness

"Two men sat in the hotel smoking room, arguing vigorously, while a third man, smoking a long and costly cigar, listened to the argument with a calm, confidential, serene air."

The men claimed, for different reasons, that it was impossible to be perfectly happy, or one of them put it in the form of a question: "Is it possible of so forgetting life's trials and tribulations, or of withdrawing, so to say, from defective mortal entity as to become completely possessed, even for a moment, with a sense of perfect happiness?"

The speaker turned to the man who was smoking the long, expensive cigar and said:

"Don't you agree to that, sir?" he asked.

"The other flicked off his ash with a happy smile."

"Sometimes," he said, "I am perfectly happy."

"What?" cried the first speaker. "You mean to say you are perfectly happy—saved in the present moment—believers of all the troubles of the universe? Perfectly happy—one moment?"

"Perfectly happy," said the stranger, smiling. "I am perfectly happy one moment. I have a half-donut ring up into the air and at the moment I am happy."

"Happy, perfectly happy?" "Yes, yes, perfectly happy. I have been in my honeymoon for six days. Six days on my honeymoon, and this is the first time I've managed to get off to have a smoke."

This is the can that holds the coffee you hear so much about.

How Adaptable Are You?

It Never Pays to Become Set in Your Ways

By BEATRICE CLARK

CHANGE is one of the characteristics of modern life. There is a gradual tendency for changes to come more and more rapidly, so that they fairly rattle upon one another's heels, and a large amount of our happiness depends on our ability to adapt ourselves to them.

The modern habit of dwelling in apartment houses is made endurable chiefly because many people are adaptable and free from the thoughtless irritations that are a part of this quality.

How many of us have been wakened up from the start by the sound of a neighbor's door slamming or by the sound of a neighbor's piano playing late at night? How many of us have been made miserable by the heavy tramping of the tenant's feet as he comes in at night? How many of us have been made miserable by the heavy tramping of the tenant's feet as he comes in at night?

How many of us have been made miserable by the heavy tramping of the tenant's feet as he comes in at night?

Adventures in Saving

Here is one of a number of interesting letters received in response to the invitation to Boston AMERICAN readers to write on the question, "How Much Do You Save?"

Other letters will follow.

A LESSON IN THRIFT

I have come to feel that the rarest of virtues is thrift. I am not a person of what would be considered a very moderate salary, but I am a person of a moderate salary. I am not a person of what would be considered a very moderate salary, but I am a person of a moderate salary.

When I took my present position I considered a very moderate salary, but I am a person of a moderate salary. I am not a person of what would be considered a very moderate salary, but I am a person of a moderate salary.

From that time to the present, after putting aside money for my future expenses, I began to save, putting it out of my hands in a safe place, and I am not tempted to spend it.

was compelled to ask for loans, and had a strong tendency toward making me avoid the same evils they received, and I made a firm resolve not to be a borrower, which in fact, is a sort of slavery.

I like to be a little ahead of the game, and how can one get there who hasn't a dollar ahead and owes money also? I should advise putting the money out of your hands—and then forgetting it. I consider that the same I am to pay out each week for room rent, food, carfare, etc, do not belong to me, and, if I am honest, I do not touch that particular amount.

This course of decision as to the amount I can save. This has become a fixed habit. People who think they know my salary say, "How can you save?" nevertheless, when they want to borrow a few dollars they realize that I have saved.

By following the rule laid out above I keep out of debt, retain my self-respect and do not have to borrow money. I will add that, however, I will not admit being stingy. If my wife called me that I would simply not let her hear of it.

Notwithstanding the above mentioned facts, I have been laughed at and called an "easy money" man.

How Much Do You Save?

Hundreds of thousands of married men and women and hundreds of thousands of unmarried fail to save a portion of their incomes.

Hundreds of thousands of others put away a certain sum each week or month.

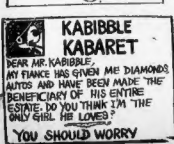

The Boston American invites its readers to give their experiences in saving for publication on this page.

These experiences, besides being of interest as human documents, will be a help and an inspiration to those who have not cultivated the habit of thrift.

Write on one side of the paper only and limit your articles to 250 words. Address Editor Magazine Page, Boston American, No. 80 Summer street. Names will not be used if so requested.

OUR FIRST DUTY IS TO MAINTAIN PEACE;
OUR NEXT DUTY IS TO PREPARE FOR WAR

IS THIS NATION AS GREAT AS ITS OBLIGATION AND ITS OPPORTUNITY?

THE thoughtful American must be more and more powerfully impressed with the perils that menace civilization and that become more menacing with each recurring day of slaughter and woe and waste.

This awful and dreadful spectacle of Europe's madness and destruction begins at last to weigh upon the souls of men; it has become an unbearable burden of sadness.

The whole world lies in the shadow of this dreadful night, this blackness of darkness.

This incredible tragedy, in which the Lords of Hell seem to have broken loose to make the earth the stage of their furious and horrid carnival of hate, lust, rapine and murder, is no longer tolerable to the peaceable peoples.

It has reached that pass that not only the civilization and the wealth and the useful lives of the warring peoples are being irreparably weakened and wasted, but that the civilization and the wealth and the vitality of the peaceful nations are also being sapped and weakened and dangerously imperilled.

The continuance of the numbers, strength, wealth and progressive achievements of each white nation is absolutely essential to the continuous safety of all white nations.

The peoples of the United States, of the South American republics, of the Scandinavian kingdoms, of Holland, of Switzerland, of Spain—of each and all of the nations at peace—are as vitally interested to preserve the wealth and strength and civilization of Great Britain from destruction as are the Britons; to preserve the wealth and strength and civilization of Germany from destruction as are the Germans; to preserve the wealth and strength and civilization of France, Italy and Austria from destruction as are the Austrians, the Italians and the French.

For, citizens, the domination of the white race and the extension over the world of the wonderful and benign civilization of the white race can be maintained only so long as ALL OF THE WHITE NATIONS MAINTAIN THEIR STRENGTH AND THEIR VITALITY.

What hope of domination is there left to the white race if the powerful white peoples of Europe continue this insane war until they have wasted their wealth, destroyed their resources, and killed or made useless cripples of their manhood?

Every day that this insane war continues, tens of thousands of the white race are being destroyed—upon whose lives our future SAFETY depends.

Every day that this insane war continues, millions of wealth are being destroyed—wealth upon which our future PROSPERITY depends.

Every day that this insane war continues Christianity is being destroyed—that religion which differentiates us from the oriental pagans and which is so intimately knit up with all the institutions of the white race.

Every day that this insane war lasts the civilization of the white race is being destroyed—that civilization which is both the mother and the child of the white man's power, riches, renown, achievement and happiness.

Every day that this insane war continues civilization takes another step backward, for the nations at war are not marching forward toward a higher civilization. They are marching steadily rearward toward semi-barbarism.

Their faces are not set toward the twentieth century. Their faces are set toward the dark ages.

Day by day their anger grows more bitter.

Day by day they thirst more eagerly for each other's blood.

Day by day they kill and burn and waste with a more implacable fervor of hate.

Citizens, this awful war should stop!

And we are the one powerful, neutral, friendly people who can set on foot the effective measures that will stop this war.

The time has come when any idle part is no part for the United States to play, when to sit inactive waiting for peace to come through Europe's self-exhaustion and final destruction is suicide on our own part.

The time has come when not only in the interests of the world and for the security of civilization, but in our own interests and for our own safety and security, we must actively and forcefully bring pressure to bear upon the powers to end their insane warfare.

We have it in our power to stop this war.

There IS a method which is ready to hand if we have the courage, the humanity and the larger statesmanship to use it.

That method was set forth by Mr. Hearst in a series of editorials recently published in the AMERICAN.

In one of these editorials, printed on July 26, Mr. Hearst said:

"It seems to us that OUR government is the one government peculiarly able to suggest and to form a league of all neutral nations and an arbitration tribunal composed of representatives of all those neutral nations. We could prevent in this way any extension of this war which even now threatens to cripple so severely the Caucasian race and the high development of its civilization.

"Furthermore, such a league of the neutral nations and a board of arbitration so constituted would be in a wonderful position to bring this war to a quick termination.

"It could bring to bear not only the persuasion of an impartial body, but the direct influence of a very powerful league—a league powerful enough absolutely TO COMPEL AN END OF THE WAR in case it elected to exert its power in a forceful way."

The conditions pointed out by Mr. Hearst in July are infinitely worse in September.

In these few weeks thousands upon thousands have died, thousands upon thousands more have been mutilated, millions of treasure have been wasted and extensive territories and unhappy peoples given over to rapine and to the extremities of fire and steel.

The remedy pointed out by Mr. Hearst in July is still the one effective remedy in September.

The united voices and the united powers and forces of the neutral nations can bring about peace.

A league of the neutral nations can be formed.

That league of neutral nations can bring persuasion to bear.

That league of neutral nations would be powerful enough absolutely to compel an end of the war.

Citizens, why do we stand idle while the men of our race are destroying each other, while the wealth of our kindred peoples goes up in flames, while civilization of a thousand years is tumbling in hideous ruin, and while Europe is becoming a charnel house and a place of tombs above which all the devils of rapine and lust and murder shriek in the orgies of death and hell?

May God inspire us with the determination and the wisdom to put an end to these infernal orgies, to save Europe and ourselves from the cataclysm which threatens to swallow up all that our race has achieved and wrought through so many centuries of struggle and accomplishment.

Citizens, let us all this day resolve with the help of God to play a courageous part in this crisis of the white race's existence.

Let us resolve, each and every one of us, to exert our utmost influence today and every succeeding day in support of a definite plan to bring this war to an immediate end.

The United States stands today in the splendid position of the greatest nation on earth with the greatest opportunity in all history to do a great and glorious deed.

You, the reader of these lines, are one of the powerful and responsible citizens of this great nation, possessed of your own share in this opportunity.

Your words are heeded by those in authority, your influence is felt, your voice and vote are effective in determining the policies and destinies of this nation.

If you believe that it is the solemn obligation as well as the glorious opportunity of this nation to bring peace to our brothers in stricken Europe, write today to your Representative in Congress, to your Senator, to your President, and express with courtesy and dignity the opinion which it is your right and duty as a citizen to hold and to speak.

Write in your own words or write in the following words and say:

"I believe that this nation should use the great power and position which God has given it for supreme good in this overwhelming crisis in human affairs.

"I believe that this nation has the unique ability and the unexampled opportunity to bring about peace in Europe and should move promptly and positively to accomplish this benign and beneficent result.

"I believe that this nation can form a league of neutral nations whose right to arbitrate will be so unquestionable and whose influence will be so powerful that neither side in this European conflict will dare to refuse the arbitration it will offer.

"I believe that the United States alone, if it had the courage and the conscience to withhold the arms and the money which are so absolutely essential to the continuation of the war could compel the consideration of peace and the speedy conclusion of the war.

"I do not think that this nation will secure any sufficient credit for itself or confer any sufficient benefit upon humanity by waiting until the war is over before moving to end the war.

"I do not think that this nation will perform its full duty or any part of its duty to its brother nations abroad or to its own people at home by postponing its activities in behalf of peace until peace has been compelled by universal destruction and exhaustion.

"I believe that when this nation has within its hands the power to end this war, and FAILS to end the war, that this nation then and thereafter shares in the responsibility for every man slain in agony upon the field of battle, for every innocent child left an unprotected orphan, for every sorrowing woman left a dependent widow, for every grief-stricken mother, for every desolate home—for all the woe and want, destruction and destitution of this wicked war.

"I entreat you, respected Sir, as the representative of this peace-loving American people, to act—and to act now—to bring the blessing of peace to our brothers in Europe and the reward which God has promised the peacemakers to ourselves."
